

It's a dog's life.

It's not always so great being a dog. Especially if your home is an animal experimentation laboratory.

It's a hostile environment for man's best friend. A place where they could be restrained, force-fed, maimed, or even killed.

Our ultimate aim is to eliminate totally the need for experimentation on living animals.

It doesn't have to be.

That's because there are alternatives. Better design of medical experimentation, rationalising toxicity testing and developing reliable replacement methods can all help reduce the number of animals used in research.

But we can't do it without the support of companies, organisations and individuals whose donations help relieve the suffering of more and more animals every year.

To find out more please phone 0115 958 4740 or visit www.frame.org.uk

Fund for the Replacement of Animals in Medical Experiments
Russell & Burch House
96-98 North Sherwood Street, Nottingham NG1 4EE
Registered Charity No. 259464